Quarterback Rankings 2014

|---|--|
| 1. Peyton Manning, Denver Broncos Manning broke two NFL records in 2013 with 55 passing touchdowns and 5,477 passing yards, and has no choice but to continue his success with powerful receiving options Demaryius Thomas and Julius Thomas in the backfield. <hr/> 2. Drew Brees, New Orleans Saints Brees has thrown for over 5,000 yards in his last three consecutive seasons, accompanied by a total of 128 passing touchdowns during this period of time; not to mention he has the No. 1 ranked tight end, Jimmy Graham to play catch with. |  Olivia Munn, WAG of Aaron Rodgers |
| 3. Aaron Rodgers, Green Bay Packers Armed with one of the top receiving duos in Jordy Nelson and Randall Cobb, Rodgers remains a top three-ranked quarterback and is in his prime. | 8. Colin Kaepernick, San Francisco 49ers Kaepernick, who is not shy to run the ball in for a touchdown himself, has many weapons on the receiving side also, in the likes of tight end Vernon Davis and wide receivers Michael Crabtree and Anquan Boldin. |
| 4. Cam Newton, Carolina Panthers Entering his fourth NFL season, Newton offers both mobility and expert passing skills, earning him a ranking among the elite NFL quarterbacks | 9. Tony Romo, Dallas Cowboys Romo can always be counted on for plenty of passing yards and touchdowns per season, and has top-ranked wide receiver, Dez Bryant and tight end Jason Witten as red zone threats |
| 5. Andrew Luck, Indianapolis Colts Making his way into top-five quarterback status in his second NFL year, Luck entering his third season should continue to thrive in 2014 | 10. Nick Foles, Philadelphia Eagles Never missing a beat, Foles threw 27 passing touchdowns, and only one interceptions in the 10 games he started for his team last season, and should continue to be productive in 2014. |
| 6. Matthew Stafford, Detroit Lions Stafford has one of the strongest arms in the NFL and he should continue to throw upwards of 5,000 yards per season, especially with the top-ranked wide receiver, Calvin Johnson at his disposal. | 11. Russell Wilson, Seattle Seahawks Entering his third season in the NFL, Wilson, who is also mobile, will continue to grow along with his young offense, and top-ranked defensive to keep him protected. |
| 7. Tom Brady, New England Patriots No matter the circumstances, Brady remains a solid option at quarterback, averaging 4,540 passing yards and 32 per year over his past five seasons. | 12. Robert Griffin III, Washington Redskins Look for RGIII, who should be completely healthy as he starts 2014, to rebound with a new head coach, and the addition of wide receiver DeSean Jackson to work in tandem with Pierre Garcon. |

13. Matt Ryan, Atlanta Falcons

14. Philip Rivers, San Diego Chargers

Running Back Rankings 2014

|--|--|
| 1. Jamaal Charles, Kansas City Chiefs With 1980 total yards, and 19 rushing and receiving touchdowns, on a run-first team, Charles will be a force to stop in 2014. <hr/> 2. LeSean McCoy, Philadelphia Eagles McCoy remains a top running back in 2014 coming off of 314 touches and over 2,000 combined rushing and receiving yards. <hr/> 3. Adrian Peterson, Minnesota Vikings Peterson, who is loaded with talent, is to be involved in the passing game this season, which only adds to his fantasy stock. |  Charmaine Glock, WAG of Marshall Lynch |
| 4. Matt Forte, Chicago Bears Averaging over 1,000 rush yards per year in his past six seasons, and being a key player in the passing game, Forte will continue to be a valuable asset to fantasy teams. | 9. Arian Foster, Houston Texans Foster has the ability to make great plays both rushing and receiving, and should be fresh and ready after healing from his back surgery to tear up the field once again for his team. |
| 5. Marshawn Lynch, Seattle Seahawks Lynch has been in true beast-mode for his last three seasons with the Seahawks, and he is incredible in the end zone, averaging 11.7 touchdowns per game. | 10. Alfred Morris, Washington Redskins Morris continues to impress with RB1 numbers, rushing for 1,000-plus yards since his rookie season in 2012, and is ready to be involved in the passing game this year. |
| 7. DeMarco Murray, Dallas Cowboys Murray remains a solid fantasy option as the lead back for the Cowboys, coming off of his best season yet nearly 1,400 total yards and 10 touchdowns. | 11. Zac Stacy, St. Louis Rams Stacy, with 973 rush yards and seven touchdowns, quickly dominated the lead back duties for the Rams last season in his rookie year, so there's no reason to believe anything should change in 2014 |
| 8. Doug Martin, Tampa Bay Buccaneers Entering his third year in the NFL, Martin who is healed from his 2013 shoulder injury is ready to resume the lead role for his team, and is definitely capable of repeating the RB1 numbers of his rookie season. | 12. Le'Veon Bell, Pittsburgh Steelers Making his rookie debut for the Steelers in 2013, Bell proved his worth to the team with 860 rush yards and eight touchdowns during the 13 games he started, deeming a worthy fantasy option for 2014. |

13. Montee Ball, Denver Broncos

14. Giovani Bernard, Cincinnati Bengals

15. Reggie Bush, Detroit Lions

16. Ryan Mathews, San Diego Chargers

17. Frank Gore, San Francisco 49ers

18. C.J. Spiller, Buffalo Bills

29. Joique Bell, Detroit Lions

30. Bishop Sankey, Tennessee Titans

31. Pierre Thomas, New Orleans Saints

32. Stevan Ridley, New England Patriots

Wide Receiver Rankings 2014

|---|--|
| 1. Calvin Johnson, Detroit Lions Year after year, Johnson, otherwise known as "Megatron", puts up monster numbers, clearly earning his title as the best wide receiver in the NFL, which should remain par for the course this season. <hr/> 2. Demaryius Thomas, Denver Broncos Catching from the top quarterback in the NFL, secures Thomas's role as an elite wide receiver, who will no doubt repeat his stellar productivity of his past two seasons. <hr/> 3. A.J. Green, Cincinnati Bengals Averaging 1,277 yards per season over his first three years in the NFL, is incredibly impressive, and there's no reason to believe 2014 will be any different. <hr/> 4. Julio Jones, Atlanta Falcons Jones, when ready to resume his duties in full this season should be back on track for another 1,000-plus yard season as he begins just his fourth year in the NFL. |  Miranda Brooke, WAG of A.J. Green |
| 5. Brandon Marshall, Chicago Bears Marshall, who has topped 1,000 receiving yards in his last seven seasons with the NFL, just signed a new contract, which should keep him plenty motivated to prove his worth in 2014. | 9. Antonio Brown, Pittsburgh Steelers Brown had a fabulous season last year with 1,499 yards and eight touchdowns, so don't look for him to stop putting up WR1 numbers anytime soon. |
| 6. Dez Bryant, Dallas Cowboys Entering his prime and out to prove his value on a contract year is Bryant, has averaged 1,181 yards and 4.3 touchdowns per game in his past three seasons. | 10. Vincent Jackson, Tampa Bay Buccaneers Jackson continues to be reliable each year, totaling over 2,600 yards and 15 touchdowns in his past two seasons with the Buccaneers, and the signing of quarterback Josh McCown should do nothing to hurt his stock. |
| 7. Jordy Nelson, Green Bay Packers Nelson should remain a top fantasy option at the hands of Aaron Rodgers, and a 1,000 or more yards, with double-digit touchdowns is easily within sight for 2014. | 11. Alshon Jeffery, Chicago Bears Jeffery is just emerging as a serious threat to opposing teams, and is primed to put up numbers similar to last season's 1,421 yards and seven touchdowns. |
| 8. Josh Gordon, Cleveland Browns (suspension pending) A season-long suspension is still looming overhead but if Gordon can fight it and return in 2014, he's more than capable of WR1 numbers, considering he had 1,646 yards under multiple quarterbacks in just 14 games last year. | 12. Randall Cobb, Green Bay Packers Skilled in both kick returns and receiving, Cobb is a key asset to the team, and with a healthy Aaron Rodgers returning, he should be ready for another productive fantasy season. |

13. Andre Johnson, Houston Texans

14. Larry Fitzgerald, Arizona Cardinals

15. DeSean Jackson, Washington Redskins

16. Keenan Allen, San Diego Chargers

17. Victor Cruz, New York Giants

18. Pierre Garcon, Washington Redskins

19. Percy Harvin, Seattle Seahawks

20. Michael Crabtree, San Francisco 49ers

Tight End Rankings 2014

|---|---|
| 1. Jimmy Graham, New Orleans Saints Graham was targeted a whopping 136 times last season. He caught 63 percent of the passes thrown his way, putting up over 1,200 yards and 16 touchdowns. <hr/> 2. Julius Thomas, Denver Broncos Thomas was most definitely a product of Peyton Manning last season. He put up highs in catches (65), yards (788) and touchdowns (12). With Eric Decker out of the mix, Thomas should see an increase in targets <hr/> 3. Vernon Davis, San Francisco 49ers Davis averaged a whopping 16.3 yards per reception in 2013 and tallied a total every four times he caught the ball. <hr/> 4. Rob Gronkowski, New England Patriots He's missed 14 games over the past two seasons, but is averaging a whopping 79.7 yards and about one touchdown per outing since the start of the 2011 season. |  Erin Heatherton, WAG of Jordan Cameron |
| 5. Jordan Cameron, Cleveland Browns He was a dynamic playmaker for the multitude of quarterbacks thrown out there last season, catching 80 passes and posting a ridiculous 73.4 reception percentage. | 9. Jordan Reed, Washington Redskins Reed got off to a tremendous start last season as a rookie before going down with an injury. He tallied 45 receptions for 499 yards and three scores in nine games. |
| 6. Jason Witten, Dallas Cowboys Always a constant, Witten will consistently find himself among the top five or six fantasy tight ends in a given season. He has put up at least 850 receiving yards in each of the last seven seasons. | 10. Kyle Rudolph, Minnesota Vikings If Teddy Bridgewater wins the starting job, we can expect this Notre Dame product to have a huge season. |
| 7. Greg Olsen, Carolina Panthers It appears Cam Newton will have to rely a tad more on Olsen in 2014. He caught over 71 percent of the passes thrown to him for 816 yards and six scores in 2013. | 11. Martellus Bennett, Chicago Bears Bennett broke out big time with Josh McCown and Jay Cutler last season. He put up career highs in receptions (65), yards (759) and tied a career high with five touchdowns. |
| 8. Dennis Pitta, Baltimore Ravens Pitta's injury handcuffed the Ravens big time last season. Now fully healthy, expect him to continue to be a consistent option. | 12. Delanie Walker, Tennessee Titans Walker was always overshadowed by in San Francisco, but it was apparent that he would make an impact when given the chance to start. That happened last season with Tennessee. Walker caught 60 passes for 571 yards and six touchdowns. |

13. Charles Clay, Miami Dolphins

14. Antonio Gates, San Diego Chargers

15. Heath Miller, Pittsburgh Steelers

16. Ladarius Green, San Diego Chargers

17. Zach Ertz, Philadelphia Eagles

18. Coby Fleener, Indianapolis Colts

19. Dwayne Allen, Indianapolis Colts

24. Jared Cook, St. Louis Rams

25. Austin Seferian-Jenkins, Tampa Bay Buccaneers

26. Jace Amaro, New York Jets

27. Scott Chandler, Buffalo Bills

28. Jermichael Finley, Free Agent

29. Andrew Quarless, Green Bay Packers

30. Jermaine Gresham, Cincinnati Bengals

Defense Rankings 2014

1. Seattle Seahawks

This is a no-brainer. Seattle gave up an average of just 14.4 points per game last season.

2. Carolina Panthers

The Panthers have two elite defensive ends in Greg Hardy and Charles Johnson who combined for 26 sacks in 2013.

3. San Francisco 49ers

Their value depends on the outcome of Aldon Smith situation. They allowed the third-fewest points in the NFL last season, but ranked in the bottom half of the league in sacks.

4. Denver Broncos

With Von Miller back in the mix and the addition of DeMarcus Ware, Denver's defense is going to be a major threat. They immediately become one of the best pass-rushing tandems in the league.

5. Cincinnati Bengals

They put up the 10th-most sacks in the NFL and ranked fifth in scoring defense last season. This came despite Geno Atkins injury. The addition of Darqueze Dennard will also help Cincinnati's pass defense.

6. Arizona Cardinals

The losses of Dansby and Washington indicates that Arizona might take a step back in defense. Also John Abraham is getting older. Arizona still boasts one of the top secondaries in the game.

7. Kansas City Chiefs

It's all going to depend on continued pressure from pass-rush threats Justin Houston and Tamba Hali, who combined for 22 sacks a season ago. A lot of their success will depend on cornerback Brandon Flowers.

8. St. Louis Rams

They picked up Aaron Donald at the 2014 NFL draft. He's going to team up with Robert Quinn, Chris Long and Michael Brockers to form a dominating defensive front.

9. Buffalo Bills

Mario Williams is an asset to this team. Williams tallied 13 sacks and led a trio with Jerry Hughes and Kyle Williams who put up double-digit sacks each in 2013. Overall, Buffalo ranked second in the NFL with 57 sacks last year.

*Erin Heatherton, WAG of Jordan Cameron
(Cleveland Browns)*

10. New England Patriots

The Patriots ranked in the top 10 in scoring defense last year and put up the fifth-most sacks in the league. Chandler Jones led all Patriots with 11.5 sacks. The addition of Darrelle Revis at cornerback will also help New England's defense.

11. Tampa Bay Buccaneers

If the Buccaneers can get a decent pass-rusher they will be in a good position. That's where the addition of Michael Johnson comes into play. He's two years removed from putting up 11.5 sacks.

12. New Orleans Saints

Rob Ryan has done a tremendous job building a defense and the Saints should be rewarded for that in 2014.

13. Houston Texans

14. Baltimore Ravens

15. Cleveland Browns

16. Pittsburgh Steelers

17. New York Giants

18. Philadelphia Eagles
